

With 6,200 employees in research, teaching and administration and its unique profile, TU Dortmund University shapes prospects for the future: the interaction between engineering and natural sciences as well as social and cultural studies drives both technological innovations and progress in knowledge and methodology. It is not only the roughly 34,500 students who benefit from this.

The Faculty of Education, Psychology and Sociology at TU Dortmund University is seeking to fill the position of a commencing on April 1st, 2020. The professorship is located at the Institute of Sociology. The successful candidate will represent the field of sociology of gender relations in research and teaching.

Candidates must have a proven academic record in the field of sociology of gender relations, micro-sociology, and qualitative or interpretative methods, as evidenced by international publications in recognized (peer-reviewed) journals. They should have relevant experience in research as well as in raising third-party funds. They must be willing to get involved in research alliances and collaborations in and outside of TU Dortmund University, including the Network for Women’s and Gender Research North-Rhine Westphalia.

An adequate contribution to the faculty’s curriculum and the willingness to participate in inclusion-oriented teacher training is expected.

The successful candidate possesses social and leadership skills and is willing to be involved in academic self-governance.

The recruitment requirements are based on § 36 and § 37 HG NRW (law governing universities in NRW).

TU Dortmund University strives to increase the number of women in academic research and teaching and therefore strongly encourages women to apply.

TU Dortmund University is an equal opportunity employer and gives preference to candidates with disabilities if equally qualified.

TU Dortmund University supports the compatibility of work and family life and promotes gender mainstreaming in the university community.
